Newsletter – November 2020

Looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith

Hebrews 12:2

Please join us on Sunday for the service

At Capital Bible Church, our statement of faith declares, and we believe in the following:

1. That the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are absolutely inspired of God, inerrant in the original writing and are of supreme and final authority in all areas of knowledge, faith and conduct.

The qualities of Scripture are inherent to its being the authoritative Word of God. These qualities, or characteristics, give us confidence that the bible is what it claims to be, and they provide a solid ground for receiving Scripture as the final authority for all of life. Consider what is stated in 2 Timothy 3:16–17; this is probably the most important single biblical text on the inspiration of Scripture. There we read that the words of Scripture have been breathed out by the lord but not to the exclusion of human instrumentality. In other words, God made use of men in revealing His Word, empowering them to receive His truth and protecting them as they wrote so that they would give us exactly what He wants us to have.

There is the inerrancy of Scripture. Inerrancy is a natural outflow of infallibility in the traditional, orthodox sense. Since the authors could not err when writing Scripture, the bible contains no affirmations of anything that is contrary to fact. Inerrancy is a quality of the original text of the bible. Translations may err, but the original manuscripts penned by the prophets and apostles do not.

Because the Scriptures are the only God-breathed revelation given to the church, they form the only infallible rule for the church today. God’s Word has no higher or equal authority. It is the ultimate authority in all things, for God cannot refer to any higher authority than himself to establish the truthfulness of what he says (Hebrews 6:13). Sola Scriptura denies that there is any other infallible rule of faith for the church. There may be other rules (e.g., confessions of faith and doctrinal statements), but they are not infallible and are only useful if they accurately reflect the teaching of Scripture. Since Scripture is God-breathed, it provides us with the very voice of God (see Matthew 22:31–32), whereas human tradition not founded upon Scripture makes “void the word of God” (Matthew 15:6).
